

The College of Nursing Myrtle Crawford Memorial Lectureship Welcomes

Dr. Ivy Oandasan

Dr. Oandasan is an academic family physician and associate professor at the University of Toronto, who has engaged in clinical practice and health professions education since 1997. Her ongoing hope is to help influence the development of competent and caring healthcare professionals who believe in the practice of interprofessional patient-centered care. Considered an expert in the field of Interprofessional Education (IPE), she grounds her knowledge and practice through her work as a clinician, educator, researcher, and administrator. As the Director of Education at the College of Family Physicians of Canada, she leads the advancement of competency based family medicine education across the continuum of learning from undergraduate to postgraduate education and into the early years of practice.

In her varied roles, she has influenced the implementation of IPE locally, provincially (Ontario), nationally (Canada) and internationally. More specifically, in her role as Director of the Office of IPE at University of Toronto, she successfully fulfilled her mandate to develop the organizational structures and strategies to implement a mandatory IPE curriculum for the ten U of T health care discipline programs beginning in the Fall of 2009. In her role as Director, she was able to catalyze relationships within and across hospitals and the university health science faculties to advance interprofessional education and interprofessional care. The Office of IPE became a Centre for IPE in 2010 jointly sponsored by the University of Toronto and The University Health Network /Toronto Rehabilitation Institute.
